KNOW THE WEATHER

By E. H. Hervey

Does the moon affect the planting of corn?
Yes, the moon does affect the weather. It is believed that the full and high tide at the time the moon is usually higher than at the quarter, and at the autumnal equinox even higher when the moon is full.
The moon's effect on the weather is not yet fully known. Enough is believed to be a fact. As for its values to the growth of crops, many farmers and gardeners of countless generations believe it has a definite relation to the growth of crops over the years seems to support the theory.
The explanation of this is not yet known.

Today 94th. Anniversary of Civil War's End

Did the Blowing of a Whistle Make Appomattox Famous?

(By Calvin Robinson)

Did the tooting of a whistle 94 years ago have a bearing upon the entrance into history of Old Appomattox Court House as a place of Peace after War?

There is just enough in the fabulous Appomattox Story to make you wonder.

Want to hear the story.

Chief source of the story is the famous and very rare and long out-of-print book by Morris Schaff, The Sunset of the Confederacy. Schaff witnessed the major events. He was also a gifted writer and his account of the last hours of The Confederacy has long been accepted as a classic.

The background is that after the fall of Richmond, Lee was driving his dwindling Army of Northern Virginia to the Southwest, hoping to get space for maneuvers, join with other Confederate armies still in being, and continue the war until the North would accept a negotiated Peace acceptable to the Southern Cause. His first target was Danville. Had he broken out into open territory, or had he ever reached Texas, some think the South could have salvaged the Cause even as late as the spring of 1865.

Lee was denied heading for Danville by Grant's persistent and superiour pressing He had to veer into a corner pocket, with the James River on the north side and the Southside Railroad on the other . . . and the tip of the picket was Lynchburg.

History amply proves that Lee had no idea of surrendering as he neared Appomattox. Saylor's Creek had been a disaster, but until a few hours before his meeting with Grant in the home of Wilmer McLean that Palm Sunday, 94 years ago, he had every intention of carrying on. He had some misgivings, by then, of ever gaining a clearcut military decision, but he was resolved to try to wear down the North by skillful retreat and maneuver once he gained open territory.

Lee's major problem was rations His men needed, deserved and simply had to have rations.

Word was sent to Lynchburg of the desperate situation. The Hill City, threated itself by Federal cavalry, did a wonderful job and was able to send FOUR trains of rations and supplies down the Southside Railroad toward Appomattox.

Here was the food that might have kept the Army of Northern Virginia in business to get out of the pocket of entrapment and into open country! Not enought for all the horses. Not enough of anything for to many . . . . but, perhaps enough to get the solid fighting remnants through!

Here is the way Morris Schaff described what happened:

"... General Pennington told me that, after Randol (our note: Colonel A. M. Randol of the Second New York) had returned from his scout, he and Custer (our note: the famed Gen. George Custer) and Randol were dismounted and lay resting under the shade of some trees by the roadside a mile or more from Appomattox Station, when the whistle of a locomotive was borne to them. The sun was about an hour high. Custer jumped to his feet, exclaiming, "By George, there's a train; let's go for it!" and sprang into his saddle. Randol says his regiment sent off at a trot, and that Custer rode up and, laying his hand on his shoulder, said, "Go in, old fellow, don't let anything stop you: now is your chance for the stars; whoop'em up and I'll be after you."

Randol, followed by Pennington, at once struck into a gallop. The leading troopers, catching sight of the trains at the station just getting under way, for they had taken alarm, circled ahead, of them, spuurring up alongside the engine, covered the engineers with their revolvers and told them to throw the levers and stop. Randol then called his men to the trains, when old firemen and engineers gladly threw themselves off their horses and, mounting cabs, started the trains toward Farmville, with bells ringing and whistles blowing.

And so it was: Lee's ration trains didn't know the Yanks were near, and blew their whistles to call the Confederates to their desperately needed supplies. But the Yankees heard, and captured the trains, and Lee's men spent a last hungry and awesome night, and the next morning, after a final desperate fight, Lee had to "go to see Gen. eral Grant."

Oh, it is the sort of thing historians like to theorize about. But this is the incident: What would have happened if the ration trains had "eased into" Appomattox Station in silence and their supplies had actually reached Lee! With even one good meal, could Lee's men have made it to the open country ahead and carried on the fight? That we will never know! Nor, truly, can we say that Appomattox got its place in history because of a "whistle-happy" engineer, who did not know the Yanks were so near.

The 94th Anniversary of the Peace at Old Appomattox Court House, and the 19th Anniversary of the establishment of the Appomattox National Historical Park is being observed April 9 and 10 here.

On both days, the McLean House will be open from 10 A. M. to 3:30 P. M.

Also the Museum, located in the Restored Tavern, will be open as usual.

Steady progress is being made in the work of complete restoration at the National Park Service area at the Old Court House. Among the items either recently completed or in process are the Clover Hill Tavern Kitchen and the Clover Hill Tavern Guest House; the Plunkett-Meeks Store and House, which is to be furnished as a period country store (this is about 95 per cent completed). Architects Judd and Carroll will begin work on restoration of the Kelly House as a forthcoming project. This is an original 1865 building, and was built by Lorenzo Kelly, a wheelwright. At present the exterior will be restored.

Some plans are ranging up for improvement and enhancen, parking areas and restoration of the terrain to 1865 appearance.

Weekly News Letter
Of Mayor Moses

To the Citizens of the Town and County of Appomattox:

In the issue of the Times-Virginian which was published on March 26, I had published a Straw Ballot concerning the operation of parking meters within the Town of Appomattox. Again on April 2, I urged all citizens of both the Town and the County to express their opinion concerning this question. At this time, I want to thank everyone who has expressed their opinion by ballot, letter or orally.

On March 26, I stated that I, as Mayor, was taking the liberty of having the Straw Ballot published. The reason for this was that I hoped I would get a good cross section of opinion concerning the meters.

I called a special meeting of The Town Council on Tuesday, April 7, at 7:30 P. M., to discuss the problem. After the meeting was properly called to order, and the purpose of the meeting stated, it was brought to the attention that Council had did not authorize the publishing of the "Straw Ballot." I accepted full responsibility for same. After a brief discussion, it was decided that all letters and suggestions to this problem would be given due consideration at the regular meeting to be held on March 20, at 7:30 P. M., in the Town Office.

Last week, I stated that the results of the "Straw Ballots" would be published in the April 9 issue of The Times-Virginian. The results of the "Straw Ballots" are as follows:

819 ballots cast
712 ballots against operation of meters
87 ballots for operation of meters
19 ballots for operation of meters on Main Street. Some of these 19 also suggested operation on some sections of Church St.
1 ballot—did not care.

I certainly hope that all of you fine people, both town and county citizens, who wish to further express your opinion will find time to write a letter to any of the Councilmen or to your mayor by or before April 20, so that your suggestions and opinions can be given due consideration. This is in accordance with the statement that was signed by me as mayor and each town councilman, which was published in the March 26th issue of The Times-Virginian.

At a special council meeting approximately two weeks ago, the Street Committee was given authority to put in loading zones that they felt were necessary. Since then, I have had some inquiries from some merchants requesting a loading zone. In the event that anyone feels that he should have a loading zone, I feel that if you will make application to the Street Committee that you will be given every consideration.

As Mayor, it is my responsibility to see that the parking and traffic ordinances are enforced. I plead with you for your cooperation, for it is not the intention of the Town officers to give any more parking or traffic tickets than they have to.

On April 20 and 21, Charles Torrence, the Appomattox County Game Warden, is going to make a check in the town for stray and diseased dogs, and dogs without tags. Please give him your cooperation by trying to keep your dogs off the streets for these two days.

Again, I solicit your vote and support for the office of Mayor of the Town Section on June 9th, and I promise you if elected I shall carry out the duties of the office to the best of my ability.

Your counsel and advice on all public matters is welcomed at all times.

Sincerely,
C.T. Moses, Jr.
Mayor, Town of Appomattox.

Senator Moses Seeks New Term

State Senator Claud T. Moses issued today a formal announcement that he would be a candidate for another term to represent the Eleventh Senatorial Distarict. This sprawling district, largest in area in the state, is composed of the counties of Amelia, Amherst, Appomattox, Buckingham, Cumberland, Nelson and Powhatan.

The announcement of the veteran legislator was not unexpected, and it is presumed that once again he will have no opposition.

Senator Moses is the senior, in years of service, in the Virginia Senate. He succeeded the late S. L. Fore, in 1936, and has one of the longest and most outstanding records of service in the General Assembly. He is President Pro Tempore of the Senate and holds valuable committee assignments. He is chairman of Committee on Roads and Internal Navigation, and is a member of the following committees: Privileges and Elections; Counties, Towns and Cities; Agricultural, Mining and Manufacturing; Printing, and Rules.

Senator Moses is now in Richmond, attending the current Special Session of the Assembly.

The Democratic Primary will be held on July 14.

Bloodmobile Here April 21

The Bloodmobile will be in Appomattox on Tuesday, April 21, from 11 A. M. to 5 P. M., in the social hall of Liberty Baptist Church.

The quota for this visit is 115 pints of blood. When the Bloodmobile visited Appomattox last November, there were only 97 pints of blood donated. Appomattox County has drawn heavily on the blood bank this past year, so let us try not only to reach but, if possible, to pass the quota when the bloodmobile visits here on April 21.
